

C O N T E N T S

Preface xiii

Introduction:

Recognizing the Model and Her Work 1

Part I: Hortense Fiquet

1

Hortense Fiquet and Paul Cézanne 15

2

Single Mother 29

3

Sixty Francs for Hortense 37

4

Hortense at Thirty: In the Salon, in the Garden, in Bed 48

5

A Dark Blue Wedding Dress? 56

6

Fifteen Hectares of Fallow Land 67

7

For or Against Hortense? 78

8

After October 1906 86

Part II:
Camille Doncieux

9
Camille Doncieux and Claude Monet	95
10
Camille—Or—The Green Dress	112
11
A Garden Full of Dresses	119
12
Without a Sou	128
13
Why Did He Marry Her?	137
14
The Second Empire Disappears	150
15
The “Impressionist” Couple	156
16
Money and La Japonaise	173
17
A Patron	186
18
Death in a Village by the River	194
19
Epilogue	203

Part III:
Rose Beuret

20
Rose Beuret and Auguste Rodin	207
21
From Vecqueville to the Banks of the Bièvre	216
22
A Woman's Body	222
23
Montmartre and the Commune	232
24
Ixelles	241
25
The Return Home	250
26
The Commission That Changed Everything	259
27
A House in Meudon	273
28
The Dark Side of Being the Old Mistress of a Genius	282
29
The War and the Wedding	298
Afterword
"The Humble Son of a Genius"	312

Appendix: The Value of Money	315
Acknowledgments	320
Notes	323
Works Consulted	335
Index	345