

Contents

List of Figures	ix
Acknowledgements	xi
Introduction	1
I A Society of Victims? The Post-war Years, 1945 to 1957
I.1 Lives in Ruins? Nuremberg from Rubble to Reconstruction	25
I.2 ‘Victims of Bolshevism’? The Refugees and Expellees between Assimilation and Self-assertion	37
I.3 ‘The First Expellees of the War’? The Evacuees as ‘External Citizens’	51
I.4 The Veteran as Victim: The Heimkehrer between War and Peace	63
I.5 Loss, Absence and Remembrance: The Relatives of the Missing	75
I.6 Rehabilitation and Reintegration: The ‘Victims of Denazification’	88
I.7 Re-marginalising the Marginalised: The ‘Victims of Fascism’	104
I.8 Politics, Ideology, Sympathy, Empathy: Voicing Suffering in the Post-war Era	119
II The Making of a Memory Culture: Manufacturing Civic Consensus, 1945 to 1961
II.1 Mobilising Memory Communities: Associational Life and the Contestation of the Past	135
II.2 Marking Suffering, Masking Schism: The Inscription of Memory on the Urban Landscape, 1945 to 1961	160

II.3	Rehearsing Sorrow, Re-forging Society: Rituals of Remembrance between Mourning and Politics	187
II.4	Local Stories, National Stories: Exhibiting Memory at the Germanic National Museum	208
III	Challenging the Consensus, Containing the Challenge: New Impulses, 1958 to 1968
III.1	Impulses from Without, Impulses from Within: Liberalisation and the 'Confrontation of the Past'	227
III.2	Indicting the Perpetrators, Exonerating the People: Trials and their Reportage in the Local Media	246
III.3	Displaying Barbarism, Displacing Blame: Exhibitions on the Holocaust in the 1960s	266
III.4	Critiquing History, Creating Democracy? The Nuremberg Conversations, 1965 to 1968	281
IV	Nationalist Residues in a Decade of Flux: Old Responses, 1958 to 1968
IV.1	The 'Victims of War' (i): The Soldiers' Last Retreat	299
IV.2	The 'Victims of War' (ii): The Expellees' Offensive	319
IV.3	Fading Personal Experience, Forging Public Meaning: Commemorations and Civic Identity Politics in the 1960s	336
IV.4	The Fascist as 'Outsider': Nuremberg, the Nazi Party Rallies and the NPD	355
	Conclusion	375
	Primary Sources	379
	Index	000