

---

---

Contents

Preface	vii
---------	-----

1

Tocqueville's vision of history	3
The ending of "mixed" government	8
"Right" and "Left": Their conservative misreadings	17
A liberal misreading	22
Conservatives and liberals	26
Popular sovereignty and socialism	32
Popular sovereignty and nationalism	35
Nationalism and socialism	38
The accumulation of opinions	45
Progressive liberalism	48
Progressives and populists	56
Populist anti-Semitism and Germanophilia	62
Nation and state	71

2

1914: The world of yesterday?	77
"Modern"?	85
The Russian Revolution: A tremendous failure	91

1917 and the Americanization of the world	102
The failure of liberalism after 1918	106
1920–1945: The division of the world	110
Misuse and misreading of “Fascism”	116
Misuse and misreading of “totalitarianism”	126
Misuse and misreading of National Socialism as an “ideology”	131

3

The United States in 1945 and thereafter	143
The decline of the state	154
The declining function of “classes”	165
“Tyranny of the majority”? “Public opinion” and its misreadings	175
Decline of privacy, rise of publicity	180
Publicity and celebrity	185
Changes in the recording and knowledge of history	192

4

Fear and hatred	203
Triumph and disappearance of “liberalism”	217
The rise of criminality	226
A new, profound, division	229
Ideas and beliefs	235
Hope, against fear	240
 Index	 245