

Contents

Acknowledgements vii

Maps viii

Introduction – Higher Bockhampton 1

1 – A railway bore him through 11

2 – One who lived and died where he was born 25

3 – She who upheld me and I 46

4 – ‘The playground of TH’s childhood’ 61

5 – His kindred they, his sweetheart I 74

6 – One who walks west, a city-clerk 92

7 – If but some vengeful god would call to me 108

8 – Red roses and smug nuns 124

9 – Believed-in things 136

10 – Rising and falling with the tide 149

11 – With magic in my eyes 166

12 – That there should have come a change 186

13 – Wasted were two souls in their prime 210

14 – Lifelong to be I thought it 228

15 – Some hid dread afoot 244

16 – No such bower will be known 258

17 – Taking the universe seriously	270
18 – Life-loyalties	287
19 – If the true artist ever weeps	304
20 – That we had all resigned for love's dear ends	321
21 – No balm for all your sorrow	342
22 – The day goeth away	356
23 – Few persons are more martial than I	377
24 – We kissed at the barrier	394
25 – The mind goes back to the early times	409
26 – The sustaining power of poetry	422
27 – No mean power in the contemporary world	438
28 – Wistlessness	450
Conclusion – Max Gate	465

Notes 477

Further Reading 501

Index 507