

Contents

Preface, ix

Acknowledgments, xi

Introduction: Three Movements, One Goal, 1

Part 1 Preparing the Way, 1893–1910

- 1 Save the Child and Save the Nation:
The Rise of Social Feminism and Social Research, 15
- 2 G. Stanley Hall and the Child Study Movement, 31
- 3 Scientific Child Rearing, Organized Motherhood, and Parent Education, 49
- 4 Social Welfare Reformers and Reform-Minded
Scientists, 62

Part 2 Creating the Models, 1910–1921

- 5 The Children's Bureau under Julia Lathrop:
Government at Its Best, 81

- 6 From Juvenile Delinquency Research to Child Guidance, 103
- 7 Better Crops, Better Pigs, Better Children: The Iowa Child Welfare Research Station, 117

Part 3 Breaking Through, 1922–1940

- 8 The Children's Decade, 139
- 9 Child Development Research: Preventive Politics, 155
- 10 Out of Step with His Times: Arnold Gesell and the Yale Clinic, 173
- 11 The Child Guidance Movement: Another Approach to Preventive Politics, 191
- 12 Child Guidance Becomes Child Psychiatry, 207
- 13 The Children's Bureau under Grace Abbott: Uphill All the Way, 226

Epilogue: What Happened to the Early Movements?
The Child Development Field after World War II, 252

Notes, 271

Index, 365